

The first issue of Volume 12 of the UDS International Journal of Development (UDSIJD) has been published. The articles published in this issue span various disciplines in the humanities. The editorial team acknowledges the significant and growing influence of artificial intelligence on academia and ensures that authors adhere to standards. The editorial team therefore wishes to caution authors and researchers to adhere to ethical standards when submitting manuscripts to the journal. The editorial team extends its gratitude to the Management of the University, reviewers and all who contributed to making this a success.
